

ABSTRACT

Embodiments include a system for projecting demand data. The system and method may include forecasting demand for a time period. A weighting factor may be determined for a subdivision of the time period. Demand may be projected for the time period based on the weighting factor and historical demand data.